

“Christ is seeking to reproduce Himself in the hearts of men; and He does this through those who believe in Him.” Christ’s Object Lessons, 67.1

The Quilt

I came across a poem called “My Quilt” which a friend had shared with me in 2003. As I re-read it I was impressed that as the “patches” of my life are knit together they reveal less of me and more of Christ. In the poem, His image filled the threadbare holes left from the losses and challenges of life. Christ’s goal is to reproduce His image in us, in me. He is looking for “holes” in which He can put Himself.

I take this as answers to my prayers. I sometimes look back instead of forward and count the trials instead of the blessings yet this morning during prayer, God’s Spirit impressed me that I am not to linger on themes that serve to condemn me or put me down. In fact, I can hardly remember now what the old thoughts were. O, the power of prayer!

May I be careful to have the mind of Christ today and always. Amen
